very repetitive missions, a lot will have you backtracking to open doors and activating power sources. The aliens are same old through the missions and there is little diversity between the sifferent types. 4V10 is my score..

Buy on a massive discount. I have played Tropico3 a lot and this is definitely an interesting take.

Really cool Politics system. Eras reminescent of Civ5. I would recomment it if you like economy management and political games.. Amnesia without stealth but with guns, stupid monsters and lags.. Crusader kings 1 loses the fight against Crusader Kings II, but it is still fun and a cheap game. I like it and the only negative thing in this game in my opinion is that you cannot play as anyone else but a christian ruler. The idea is good, but the controls are the worst things ever. Getting Over It's controls are awful, yes, but they make sense. Flapping Over It's controls are so clunky and nonsensical I can't even play it for more than a few minutes without getting tired and bored.

Overall: 4V10. This is a HOG game, with real actors filmed with green screens added in the scenes. The graphics are very beautiful, animated, colorful and dense; a bit comics style. Some inventory objects are shown in 3D when used. The voice overs are good. This odd mixing of different styles gives an amazing result which perfectly matches the strange and thrilling story. The mini games are okay and the search scenes are beautiful and fun to search through, with a lot of interactions. Moving around is not intuitive though: to go back to the previous screen you have to click a back button on the UI (the magnifier) and you sometimes have to use the map to move around. The bonus part seems unfinished as the hint system doesn't work at all but the added zones and the final ending were nice. There are a lot of achievements to unlock and secret stashes of money to find, which are hinted on your map. You can also grab money from the search scenes. All this money is then used to buy items for your collector hideout's garden: statues, trees, fountains. You access this hideout by clicking on the purse in the lower UI. The game lasted a very decent amount of time for a HOG (around 6 hours, my time counter is off due to being offline for a week). Despite the lack of instructions and sometimes getting lost, it's still a good game and I do recommend it.. Updates ruined the game. Ubisoft couldnt sell TM Turbo so they tried to bring Turbo to TM2. It was perfect, and you ruined it.

Very very fun first-person puzzle game with unique twist of dual overlapping universes.

If you like Portal, and especially like Antichamber, then definitely buy this.

Not the longest game, but very challenging and fun, highly recommended

I feel like I'm only scratching the surface of what's in the game. Every playthrough I get a little bit wiser, a little bit better, a little bit further, followed by a whole lot deader. This is not a handholding experience, expect to learn through thinking at things and a lot of error. I see myself coming back to this game again and again, exploring paths and finding things I didn't see before.

The latest update brings controller support, I'm loving playing this on the big screen now.

Easily recommended.

Protip: I find the bullets more deadly than the cold.. Too repetitive. There's almost no way to not make your followers angry.. when the map works its good map to drive round but you get the feeling they rushed it cause don't look as real and as good as gladbeg map or berlin this one is a pain in the put and all over place its tuck me few weeks to get it to work on mine best way drive bus round out of service seems to work for few times then try in service but dose need upgrade init and finishing apart from that it's on rate out of 10 id give it 5.9. Very repetitive game, A basic tablet game but without a save. You have to get to level 101 to win. Not really worth playing.. This game i see would be fun fro a specfific number of people. (e.g You like aircraft or like playing as a flight controler) But this game makes it a VERY specific number of people. I was into airports and flying and wanted to try out this game. Then i immidiatly got bored in 1 hour. It really isent fun if youre not the number of VERY specific people. Dont reccomend wasting $20.. My WW2 was a bit different (I started in June of "44" so that's the POD for my Germany
I pulled my troops out of Normandy, and kept the allies bogged down there until late July, meanwhile, i punched out the USSRs teeth, destroying their frontline units....for a time. I pulled the few remaining troops i had out of Norway to reenforce my position in Europe, I blew back the Allies's first offensive into Northern Italy. Things were looking good.....but good things never last for Germany do they?

The Allies blew away my defensive line with airstrikes and armor, Italy held face (Mountains, thank god!) and in the East, the Russians made a renewed offensive into eastern Germany, by now i'd fully mobilized to a full war footing with all factories i could, using my better facories, i had select Arty and Armor i could use, and a decent supply of Conscripts, i sent my Conscipts east, and my tanks west.

Like i said, luck never lasts, i pushed my troops in Italy forwards, and they were overrun, the allies in the west outmanuvered me, occupying my factories. In the East, the Russians rolled through the Ukraine like a fist through a wet towel, corned on 3 swides, i pulled back many of my troops and sent them east, with a single panzer division, with infantry and arty, holding off the allies...god bless those brave souls in the Western Army Group Tear trickles down cheek Sorry, anyway, the Russians, even being attacked by Me-262s, and Infantry backed Arty, they rolled into East Prussia and Germany, but now the West was at the gates of Berlin. The last few units pulled back to Berlin and Brandenburg, and the Western Army made it's last stand, for a week and a half, in the ruins around Berlin, they fought off allied assaults in house to house fighting that would make Stalingrade look like a sandbox brawl, bombed from the air, with the smell of burning flesh and gas, running low on ammunition, the last pockets of German resistance gave in on March 27th 1945, days after the Furher took his own life from his mountaintop fortress in the Alps. The War in Europe, was over after almosy seven long years, europe was silent of gunfire and battle at last...expect even without any troops left, they would not except my surrender and moved troops about fighting nothing...once again, luck is not on German's side.

I applaud the reissue of old games by Retroism and Nightdive Studios, I will probably continue to buy them (but probably only on sale) because when the games originally came out I couldn't afford the $40 to $60 price tag back in 1993 and I would like a shot now at them. There were a lot of good games that came out around 1993:

Alien Vs. Predator Duke Nukem II

Dune

Dune II: The Building of a Dynasty

Elite Plus Hard Nova Laser Squad

Metal & Lace: The Battle of the Robo Babes (boing)

Nova

Protostar: War on the Frontier

Rex Nebular and the Cosmic Gender Bender
Ringworld: Revenue of the Patriarch

Ringworld: Revenge of the Patriarch

Space Ace

The Space Quest Saga: Roger Wilco Star Trek: The Next Generation Star Wars

Star Wars: X-Wing - B-Wing

Star Wars: X-Wing - Imperial Pursuit Starflight: A Cosmic Adventure

Stellar 7

Ultima: Worlds of Adventure 2 - Martian Dreams

Ultrabots

Wing Commander: Deluxe Edition

Wing Commander: Privateer - Speech Pack Wing Commander: The Secret Missions

This was not one of them. You wonder how someone could approve this back then. Will keep slogging to see if possible to play.
